

NO.1 BOY DETECTIVE

The Disappearing Daughter

---

Barbara Mitchelhill

Illustrated by

Tony Ross

ANDERSEN PRESS

For Emily, her librarian mum, Katy, and her dad, Paul, who fixes my computer

This edition first published in 2017 by
Andersen Press Limited
20 Vauxhall Bridge Road
London SW1V 2SA
www.andersenpress.co.uk

First published by Andersen Press Limited in 2000

2 4 6 8 10 9 7 5 3 1

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transmitted in any form, or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the written permission of the publisher.

The right of Barbara Mitchelhill and Tony Ross to be identified as the author and illustrator of this work has been asserted by them in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act, 1988.

Text copyright © Barbara Mitchelhill, 2000
Illustrations copyright © Tony Ross, 2000

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data available.

ISBN 978 1 78344 662 9

Printed and bound in Turkey by Omur Printing Co, Istanbul

Chapter 1

My name is Drooth. Damian Drooth. I track down criminals and solve crimes. A kind of one-kid, clean-up-the-world service.

How did I start? Let me tell you . . .

It was last year. The summer holidays had started and I was BORED! You know how it is when all your friends are away at the seaside or – worse still – at Disneyland.

I was riding on a 39 bus at the time. I was feeling dead miserable, when I noticed a book on the seat next to me. A Hundred Ways to Catch a Criminal. I had nothing better to do – so I read it.

After that I was hooked! My life changed overnight. I was no longer a bored brat. A droopy drop-out. I was a supersleuth and my mission was to rid the world of crime.

As it turned out, I didn't have long to wait. I was in the supermarket that afternoon. I was heading for the Assorted Crisps Section, when I saw a man lurking behind the freezers. Suspicious! I thought. A villain if ever I saw one! If I was going to prevent a crime, I had to act fast. So I jumped on the vegetable counter and shouted, 'THIEF! OVER THERE! GET HIM!'

For a second, everybody in the supermarket stood still and stared at me. Then they rushed over to the Freezer Section. (The crook was shaking with fear by this time.) They surrounded him. Some bashed him with their shopping baskets. Others grabbed him. He was finished, I could tell.

Me? I stayed cool and walked through the checkout. I didn't want publicity.

But that day, there was more . . .

On the way home, I saw a man snatch a bag outside a shop. He slung it into a big black Rover and drove off. A getaway car! I knew about them. I pulled out my supersleuth notebook and scribbled down the registration number. Then I dashed down the street to find a telephone.